

Research round-up

Hide Details

FROM: RSN

Friday, 12 October 2012, 16:58

Hello Research Supporter,

Each month we compile some of our tweets about research into an email, with other updates from the web about Parkinson's research.

I hope you find this useful.

With best wishes,

Emily

On our website

Physiotherapy beneficial for people with Parkinson's in the short term: <http://bit.ly/SJ1ojG>

New Zealand 'pig cell therapy' to be tested in people with Parkinson's in 2013: <http://bit.ly/UCmWW6>

Parkinson's Wiki

As you might have seen on the forum, a new wiki has been started for all those interested in scientific research into Parkinson's.

<http://en.wikiversity.org/wiki/ParkinsonsScience>

This Parkinson's Science wiki has been started by a few individuals and is now being opened up globally to interested parties who would like to participate in its development.

Please contact John Telford at droflet@virginmedia.com if you have any questions about the initiative or want more guidance about how to be involved.

Can you take part?

Take part in a London-based clinical trial testing a drug called Deferiprone. People w/ Parkinson's aged 50-75 needed: <http://bit.ly/Q5Y55r>

Also in the news

New research sheds light on how subtle changes in our genetic code increase the risk of Parkinson's: <http://bit.ly/VFp8eO>

Scientists discover diabetes drug may help Alzheimer's patients: <http://bit.ly/Qd5oK1>

Could cells inside the brain be mobilised to repair the damage caused by Parkinson's? <http://bit.ly/SJbaX0>

BBC News: Aspirin may slow brain decline in elderly women at high risk of cardiovascular disease, research finds: <http://bbc.in/RKX2eZ>

BBC News: Stem cells made from skin have become "grandparents" after generations of

Reply to RSN

Send